

🕒 13 July 2015, 09:00:00

- Share
- Facebook
 - Twitter
 - LinkedIn
 - E-mail

By Charl van Rooy

Venice-based design studio Watermarkdesign have revealed new images of the interior of luxury dhow projects that the studio has been involved with, constructed at the Al Mannai Marine shipyard in Qatar.

The yachts, which might appear to be traditional Qatari dhows, are fitted with advanced equipment as one would find onboard a modern superyacht, with a luxury interior designed by Garland Marco to match.

The yard reports that two superyachts have already been launched, a 30.35 metre and a 31.20 metre version, with project number 3, a 33.20 metre superyacht, currently under construction and is set to be delivered later this year.

In contrast to the traditional image of the vessels, Watermarkdesign makes use of high-tech 3D scans of the hull to be able to develop an interior which can be presented as a 3D rendering to the owner. The next step is to build the interior spaces in the pre-assembly factory in Italy, which is then shipped to Qatar for installation.

The yachts can accommodate between 8 and 10 guests, depending on the interior layout.

SYT WEEKLY AND MORE

Enter your email

- TODAY'S MOST READ
- 1 Insight: Bannenberg & Rowell, too cool for school 🕒 Today
 - 2 New 110m project Acuore by The A Group 🕒 Today
 - 3 Exclusive: first photo of the 70m Sybaris on sea trials 🕒 3 days ago
 - 4 Coral Ocean departs Lürssen following refit 🕒 Today
 - 5 SuperYacht of the Week: Lürssen's Vive la Vie 🕒 365 weeks ago

super yacht
TIMES

THE LATEST NEWSPAPER

RELATED COMPANIES

- Watermark Design
Venice, Italy
Open company profile

Al Mannai Marine
Doha, Qatar
Open company profile

RELATED SUPERYACHTS

- El Emadi
33.2m

Dhow 31m
31.2m

Alaska
30.35m